Remembrance

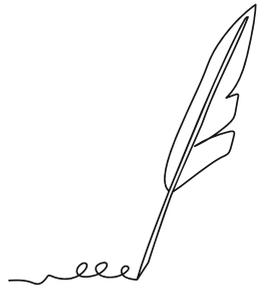

This time of year is a very difficult time of year for many. The changing seasons with diminishing daylight hours possess a challenge for those affected by seasonal disorder. We also have the festivities of Bonfire Night, which is rooted in the story of Guy Fawkes and the gun powder plot. In modern times the mask of Guy Fawkes has been popularised by the film V for Vendetta. It has become associated with those disaffected by society and the people who govern us. All these tensions build up and affect people in different ways. For me, Remembrance is a difficult time because it affects me personally. Years ago, though it doesn't seem so, I lost a brother in the Iraq War. Remembrance for many is a time they would rather not remember, including myself, but we must if we are to learn anything. Having said that, we don't seem to have learned much. The world is still a place of disorder and chaos, glistening with glimmers of light and beauty.

I feel for all those who are still caught in the midst of War, those who know the true cost of it and the madness that it creates. I think of those poor souls in the trenches on the front line in Ukraine, who are fighting for the right to be free from the possessive arms of a Russian state that see it's populace as nothing more than worthless slaves. A state that murders people with an ease of consciousness that is worse than merely depraved. In the Gospel of John, he writes: 'The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend it' (Jn. 1:5). British Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey, on the eve of the first World War uttered the words, 'The lamps are going out all over Europe, we shall not see them lit again in our life-time'.

Yet, despite tragedy and the Remembrance of them, we have, I believe a great hope, which is not dependent upon us but upon Christ. As a man of faith, I hope in him not in ourselves, ultimately. Though, we do have our part to play. Let this time be for us, a time of reflection and renewed action. To commit ourselves to the service of God and the values we treasure and give thanks for those who have. Those whose lives have given us cause to champion and a freedom to celebrate.

Phill.

A note from The Editor/Church

We'd like to clarify that the recent changes to how the magazine is distributed were not made lightly, and they were not initiated by the new Editor – we simply want to clear up any misunderstanding on that point.

As mentioned in recent issues, we no longer have a dedicated distributor. While we're very grateful to the volunteers who continue to deliver to certain areas, there is currently no one managing the overall process – collecting magazines from print, sorting quantities, and coordinating with delivery volunteers. Without someone in this coordinating role, it's becoming increasingly difficult to keep things running smoothly, and it's not fair on those who are doing their best to fill the gaps each month.

This is a key point: if someone is able to take on the role of Distribution Coordinator, we can continue printing and delivering the magazine to everyone in the community as we always have. Without someone in this role, we will have no choice but to change how the magazine is distributed.

To keep things sustainable, we really need a person who can commit to the role – this isn't a "make do" arrangement but an important position that ensures everything runs efficiently and works well for all our valued volunteers. A smooth, organised process will help the magazine reach everyone consistently and keep the community connected.

Our aim is to find a solution that's both efficient and supportive of all our volunteers. If you're interested and feel you could commit to this role, please email burghill.tillingtonmagazine@gmail.com.

We'd also love to hear your views. Please share your thoughts by answering the question below and sending your response to burghill.tillingtonmagazine@gmail.com with the subject line Distribution Poll.

If we don't hear back, we'll assume readers are comfortable with the proposed changes to how the magazine is delivered. That said, we'd really appreciate as many responses as possible – your feedback truly helps shape how we move forward.

Thank you for your continued support – it really does make a difference in keeping the magazine running for our community.

How do you access/read the magazine?

I look on either Facebook, the Church or Parish Council Website

I read it when it comes through my door

I throw mine in the bin because I see it online

I don't see it online and want a copy posted through my door

You can do more than one response- also feel free to add your own.

CHRISTMAS QUIZ & Curry Night

For the first time, we are holding a Christmas Quiz Night in aid of St Mary Magdalene's Church, Stretton Sugwas. The questions are to test your knowledge of Christmas music, movies and much more. This includes, of course a warming curry. We will also be having a half-time raffle. Come and enjoy an evening of entertainment with us this Christmas time!

FRIDAY 21ST OF NOVEMBER

7.00PM - 9.30PM

Knit One, Natter Too

Autumn is a good time to start a new project or a new craft. You don't have to be a knitter - bring your own craft project and come along.

You can be sure of a warm welcome, whatever your interest or level of expertise. We have some (almost) complete beginners as well as more experienced members who are always willing to provide advice or practical help.

You are also welcome if you only want to natter!

We usually meet on the 2nd and 4th Wednesday of each month in the Simpson Hall, from 2-4pm, with refreshments provided, paying £2 per session.

November meetings are on the 12th and 26th.

If you need help with transport, do let me know. Joanna Helme

St Mary's Walking Group

What a windy walk we had last month! A closed footpath at Sutton St Nicholas meant a last-minute diversion, and there were plenty of cows to keep us on our toes. Despite the challenges, everyone enjoyed the walk, especially as we made it back just before the rain and were able to enjoy lunch under cover at Lyde Court.

Our next walk:

Saturday 8th November

Meeting at Burghill church 9.50am

We meet at 9:50am in the Burghill Church car park. From there, we share cars and drive to our starting point for a leisurely 4 to 5 mile walk. We warmly welcome newcomers to join us on our adventures.

For more information call Annie Ness: 01432 760552.

We are moving forward with the modular buildings project and recently met with the Section 106 officer from Herefordshire Council. As the buildings are a change from the approved planning, we need to go back through the planning process. The next stage is to apply for grants and to continue with our fundraising events to address the shortfall. We are very grateful to Burghill Parish Council and residents who have faithfully and patiently supported us in our vision.

We recently held a 50's and 60's night which was a great success and thank you to all the helpers and supporters. We particularly want to thank Charlie for the wonderful food, and we are so fortunate to have him in our community.

Our next fundraising event is "Christmas Music Bingo for all the Family" which is being run by two of our young volunteers so do please come along and support them – see separate advert in magazine for details.

ADVANCE NOTICE:-

IT'S ONLY NATURAL

We naturally think of human nature as something distinct from, or superior to, the rest of the animal kingdom. On the other hand, if there really is such a thing as human nature, a nature which all humans share, then this in itself is nothing special: any member of a species, by definition, shares its nature with all the other members. Furthermore, what comes to us naturally is pretty much the same as what comes naturally to a vast range of other creaturely forms of life. It's only natural, for example, to love our offspring, and for me to love my family more than yours. It's also natural, though not always easy, to feel at home in the place of our birth and therefore wish to defend it. There is a sense indeed in which everything we do and think is a product of one natural evolutionary process. None of this, of course, is to suggest that we are merely part of the animal kingdom. On the contrary, as human beings we have rational choices to make, moral choices in particular. Hence the inbuilt tension within our conceptual distinction between man-made or artificial on the one hand, and whatever is natural on the other. We nevertheless need the distinction, not just to mark the difference between our world and anything we might want to regard as supernatural, but to distinguish human creation and destruction from the behaviour of the animal kingdom and the mindless goings on of the world at large. But whilst the natural world can be indiscriminately violent or vicious, we accuse neither stones nor animals of being immoral or evil. If we insist on distinguishing ourselves (Homo sapiens, the wise ones) from the rest of nature, then this is largely because we alone have developed a form of language which enables us to conceptualize ethical principles. That it's only natural is often put forward, nevertheless, as though it were an ethical free pass, a kind of ready-made justification for our behaviour. Being naturally territorial creatures, it's only natural to get angry if someone tries to force their way into the home. By extension, it's natural to be angry when illegal immigrants take advantage of our hospitality. And the more personally disadvantaged someone might be as a result, the more understandable their anger. But whilst patriotism as such might be all well and good, it ceases to serve when used as a refuge from which to hide our distinctively human moral failings. The ethical challenge, as always, is to recognize the better side of our human nature and endeavour to act accordingly. One challenge in particular for our flag waving society today is to recognize the danger of progressing from that natural form of display we call patriotism, through to jingoism, only to end up with that all too human form of irrational hatred -- xenophobia.

The Delightful Apple Tree

Did you know that before the war, there were over fifty types of apple readily available for the consumer to buy? Yet look in any shop now to see that today we have only a tiny number of commercial varieties to choose from. The commercial world needs heavy crops, large, regular shaped fruit, resistance to bruising, storage for many months and visual attractiveness. Flavour is not the top priority.

For the gardener who values flavour, the solution is to get a much tastier apple by growing your own. This will certainly involve a quest discovering less commercial alternatives to the ubiquitous Cox's Orange, Bramley or Golden Delicious - but the result will be well worthwhile.

First decide what you want your apple to do for you: for instance, no diseases to need spraying? Try the cooker 'Bardsey' or dessert 'Red Windsor'.

Dual purpose cooker and eater? Try the tasty 'Cobra'.

A truly delicious traditional eating apple? Try 'Chivers Delight' 'Rosemary Russet' or 'Pitmaston Pineapple'.

Local heritage? You won't get more local than the cooking apple 'Tillington Court'.

Apples make superb garden trees because an apple tree's height and vigour is controlled by the rootstock it is propagated onto. This means that you can grow the same variety in a size to suit your space. The smallest will be a 6 ft (1.8m) tree on an M 27 very dwarf rootstock, which will need a good soil and permanent staking. With more space, you can grow the same apple in a larger tree size on a more vigorous rootstock like M.26 about 15 feet/4.5m or MM. 109 about 20 feet/6m. There are also larger growing options.

The widest range of apple trees (bare root or container grown) is available to buy this month. For really helpful advice, I recommend talking to the apple tree experts at Frank P. Matthews' 'Tree Shop' retail outlet on their nursery at Tenbury Wells and also check their catalogue information. (See www.frankpmatthews.com then 'Tree Shop').

Here's a pre-wassail toast to REAL apples!

THANK YOU...

A heartfelt thank you to our wonderful deliverers

As another edition of our parish magazine finds its way through your letterbox, we want to take a moment to say a huge thank you to the amazing team of volunteers who make this possible every single time.

Come rain or shine, through chilly mornings and blustery afternoons, our dedicated deliverers set out with bundles of magazines in hand, ensuring that every household in the parish receives their copy.

Some of our volunteers have been faithfully doing this for many years, your commitment and quiet service are truly the heartbeat of our community.

Your efforts help keep us all connected, informed, and in touch with one another. We couldn't do it without you.

So from all of us—thank you for your time, your energy, and your steadfast dedication. You are very much appreciated!

Join almost 4,000 people in legal claim over impacts of river pollution

Thousands of people have joined a legal claim over negative impacts they have suffered as a result of river pollution.

The claim includes people living in regions near the rivers Wye, Lugg and Usk, who say they have experienced negative effects on their business and/or personal lives due to the deteriorating state of the rivers.

If you feel you have also been impacted, you may be able to join the claim.

Who can join?

The claim is open to people in the region who say they have been impacted by river pollution in a number of ways.

The rivers have historically been popular locations for a variety of riverside hobbies including wild swimming, fishing and canoeing, which residents say have now been disrupted.

Others in the region say they have been impacted financially. These include those with properties near the river which have reduced in value, and people affected by a building ban (moratorium) on properties near the River Lugg – in place due to high nutrient levels in the ground.

It is also argued that businesses such as fisheries, hotels, pubs and car parks have suffered financial setbacks as a result of the river's deteriorated state.

People experiencing these kinds of negative effects can contact Leigh Day to see if they are eligible to join the claim.

Who is the claim against?

The claim is being brought against the Avara Foods poultry group and Dŵr Cymru Welsh Water.

Avara Foods poultry group manages a majority of the largescale poultry operations in the River Wye region. It is alleged that chicken manure from these operations, which is high in phosphorus, leaches into the river causing algal blooms, which damages the state of the river.

Dŵr Cymru Welsh Water manages sewage for the entire region, and it is alleged that sewage spills have also harmed the condition of rivers across the region.

To join the claim or find out more, visit: www.leighday.co.uk/riverwyecclaim

We're updating the way this magazine is distributed...

Many residents now enjoy reading it electronically, via email, our community Facebook page, or the Church and Parish websites.

To help reduce waste and printing costs, we're making a few changes...

Starting February 2026, magazines will be available at key collection points around the community. If you want a physical copy, you can pick one up yourself or ask someone to collect one on your behalf.

Collection points

- Burghill Church- In the box which is on the church gate (24hrs)
- Leasown Bus Stop- In the box
- Burghill Golf Course- In front lounge porch (if you don't feel comfortable going in) and in both bars
- The Bell Inn- Both bars, can either read or takeaway
- Tillington Stores- Help yourself near till
- Simpson Hall- Box outside
- St Marys- Box
- Tillington Common Bus Stop- In the box
- Portway- Box next to Letterbox/Parish Notice Board

We hope this will make the magazine more accessible and help reduce unnecessary printing.

Thank you for supporting your community magazine!

Entry deadline 20th of every month

If you would like to receive this magazine by email, please email the editor to be added to the mailing list.
